Noka Ryokudo

This is a promenade running along an old track that was originally used exclusively by the old Saiki Naval Defense Force and then extended to the Saiki Plant of Koukoku Jinken Pulp (the former Kohjin) after World War II. In May, this path becomes even more lovely with purple wisteria blooming on trellises. Please watch out for bees!

This is located on the premises of Kojin which were previously used as an airfield. Just check in at the entrance, and you will be able to enter the premises.

Be careful in crossing the street!

2 Yawaraqi Peace Memorial Museum

This museum was built where the barracks of the Saiki Naval Air Force previously stood. Visit this museum filled with valuable artifacts to explore the history of Saiki, which once flourished as a naval town in the second quarter of the 20th century.

Around Nokavama Hill The trailhead of Nokayama Hill is studded with the ruins of the old Saiki Naval Ai Force Base facilities.

Known as the Kitchen of Saiki where you can find all kinds of fresh fish and seafood, this is the first place you should visit if you are looking for delicious local fish. Here you can also enjoy a bluefin tuna cutting show on Saturday!
